POWELL, OH Employees recognize work of Humane Society of Delaware County, Ohio

geoAMPS is a new, proud sponsor of the Humane Society of Delaware County. The technology company is located in the Delaware County community of Powell, Ohio.

The Humane Society of Delaware County (HSDC) is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping abused, neglected and homeless pets find permanent homes. HSDC serves and protects animals by conducting cruelty investigations, providing humane education, operating a low-cost vaccination and wellness clinic, and reducing pet overpopulation through a low-cost spay and neuter clinic.

"I congratulate our excellent geoAMPS team on making the wise choice to help some of the most helpless within our community, animals that rely on the kindness and care of people in order to enjoy happy and healthy lives," Yogesh Khandelwal, President and Chief Executive Officer of geoAMPS, said.

geoAMPS employees donate to a company charity fund throughout the year. The employees vote on which charity will be the recipient of the dollars collected throughout the year.

Recognizing the vital role that the humane society plays in the Delaware County community, geoAMPS' employees decided to donate all of the funds collected during 2013 to HSDC.

"The local humane society operates independently of national organizations and does not receive any governmental funding," Yogesh Khandelwal, President and Chief Executive Officer of geoAMPS, said. "I congratulate our excellent geoAMPS team on making the wise choice to help some of the most helpless within our community, animals that rely on the kindness and care of people in order to have happy and healthy lives."

Because of the employees' donation, geoAMPS became a Gold Sponsor of HSDC.

"All of us at geoAMPS are pleased to sponsor our local humane society and help that organization fulfill its important mission," Yogesh said.
